Dear Colleagues,

At the dawning of psychoanalysis in Freud's project and throughout his writings, the intertwining of body and psyche was elemental. However, since Freud, the body has been progressively undertheorized. This APM Symposium 'On the Body' addresses the imperative to bring the body back to center stage and to consider the challenges it poses to our current ways of understanding our patients. Does the contemporary ideology of the body, an ideology of an omnipotent mind that transcends the limits of the natal body, produce different kinds of patients from those of the times of Freud? How do we think of sexuality today and of the psychosomatic symptoms that we are encountering more and more in our practice? How is the body today used by the psyche, in an era where the infinite possibilities of current technologies have transcended our world and have set new norms and expectations?

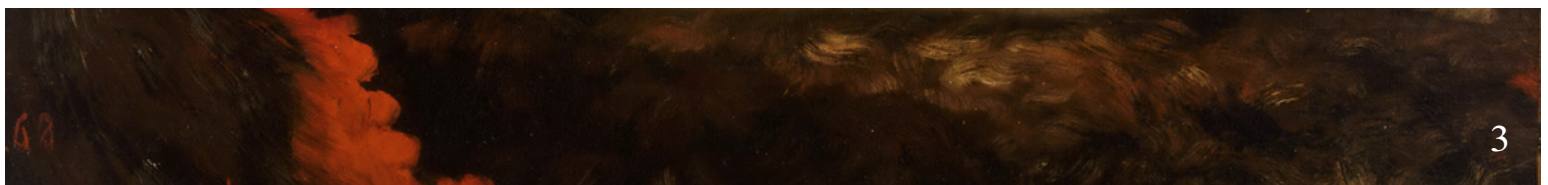

We welcome you to join us in deep reflection on these topics that affect not only our clinical practices but also the fabric of social and personal experiences in our contemporary world. We have assembled this group of international thinkers with the hope that you will emerge inspired and energized from this encounter.

Sincerely,

Vaia Tsolas

THE BODY IN OUR CHANGING WORLD

Moderator: Robert Michels

The body is where the mind of the subject is rooted and perhaps the body is where the repressed/unconscious of our postmodern digital era resides as well. This panel will explore the various ways in which the use of the body in the changing norms of gender fluidity, sexuality and reproduction are shaping our psyches.

- Robert A. Paul

Changing Attitudes about Sex: A Dual Inheritance Perspective

Robert A. Paul, Ph.D., is Charles Howard Candler Professor of Anthropology and Interdisciplinary Studies at Emory University. A training and supervising analyst, he is also Director of the Emory University Psychoanalytic Institute. His most recent book, "Mixed Messages: Cultural and Genetic Inheritance in the Constitution of Human Society" (University of Chicago Press) was named one of the dozen "best reads in science" for 2015 by the journal "The New Scientist."

- Rosemary H. Balsam

Modern Gender Flexibility: Puzzling the Royal "We" and the Body's Activities

Rosemary H. Balsam F.R.C.Psych (Lond), M.R. C.P. (Edin), is an Associate Clinical Professor of Psychiatry in the Yale Medical School; staff psychiatrist in the Yale Department of Student Mental Health and Counseling, and a Training and Supervising Analyst at the Western New England Institute for Psychoanalysis, New Haven, Conn. Her special interests are gender developments, young adulthood, the place of the body in psychic life, the work of Hans Loewald and teaching. She has written award winning papers and books, lectured here and abroad, and was a National Woman Traveling Psychoanalytic Scholar for APsA. On the editorial boards of PQ, and Imago, with her husband, Paul Schwaber, she is co-editor of the Book Review Section of JAPA. Her most recent book is: Women's Bodies in Psychoanalysis (2012, Routledge).

- Julia Kristeva

The Shifting Shape of the Parental

Julia Kristeva is Director of the Institute for the Study of Texts and Documents at University of Paris VII and visiting professor at Columbia University. She is the recipient of France's distinguished "Chevalière de la légion d'honneur" and in 2004 won the Holberg International Prize for her "innovative explorations of questions on the intersection of language, culture and literature [that] have inspired research across the humanities and the social sciences throughout the world". A practicing psychoanalyst, she is a careful reader of Freud, and finds his voice in such contemporary concerns as desire, love, revolution, the poetic, the soul, faith.

DISEMBODIMENT IN OUR DIGITAL AGE AND ITS IMPACT ON THE PSYCHE

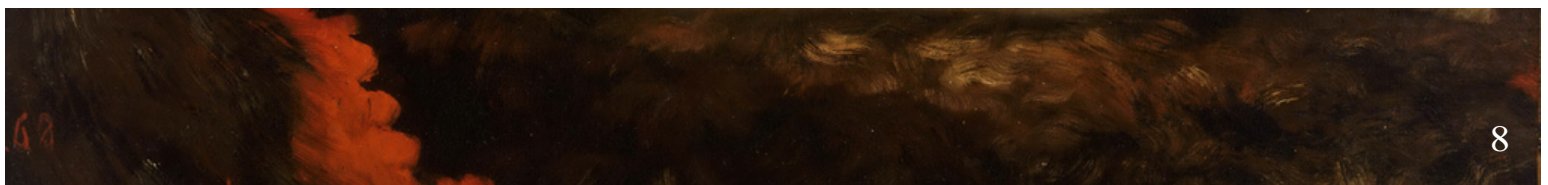

Moderator: George Sagi

By interacting with machines 'as if' they were embodied with the richness of human experience, not only do we also risk entering into the disembodied realm of the 'as if,' but also we risk treating other humans as if they too were disembodied. This presentation explores the pitfalls of our digital age as it permeates human interactions.

- Sherry Turkle

Empathy Machines

Sherry Turkle is the Abby Rockefeller Mauzé Professor of the Social Studies of Science and Technology in the Program in Science, Technology, and Society at MIT, and the founder (2001) and current director of the MIT Initiative on Technology and Self. Professor Turkle received a joint doctorate in sociology and personality psychology from Harvard University and is a licensed clinical psychologist. Professor Turkle writes on the "subjective side" of people's relationships with technology, especially computers. She is an expert on culture and therapy, mobile technology, social networking, and sociable robotics. Her newest book is the New York Times bestseller, Reclaiming Conversation: The Power of Talk in a Digital Age (Penguin Press, October 2015), which investigates how a flight from conversation undermines our relationships, creativity, and productivity.

SEX, GENDER AND INFANTILE SEXUALITY

Moderator: Vaia Tsolas

It was not only Freud's assertion that children were sexual, but also that human sexuality was polymorphously perverse in nature, that made Freud unpopular in his times. In our theorizing, the notion of infantile sexuality has been repressed. Ironically, sexuality today is polymorphous beyond Freud's imagination thanks in part to the technologies that transcend the natal body. This panel will explore the complexities of these phenomena.

- Patricia Gherovici

Botched Bodies: The Invention of Gender and the Construction of Sex

*Patricia Gherovici, Ph.D. is a psychoanalyst and analytic supervisor. BODY, SIBLINGS AND THE LAW OF THE MOTHER

Discussant: Karen Gilmore

Freud's failure to find a place for the concept of bisexuality within the theory of the drives has a wider context, which is the absence of siblings and lateral relations from our theory and clinical practice. A distinct horizontal axis of lateral relations interacts with the vertical axis of parents and children. The body-ego and bodily relations of peers also differ. Bisexuality as a subject position, so crucial for "Gender", peer-mirroring and peer-intersubjectivity will illustrate the argument.

- Juliet Mitchell

The Sexual Body and the Drives: The Sibling Trauma and the Law of the Mother

Juliet Mitchell is a Professorial Research Associate and Founder Director of the M.Phil./Ph.D. Programme in Psychoanalytic Studies at UCL Psychoanalysis Unit. She is also the Founder Director of the Centre for Gender Studies at the University of Cambridge, a Research Fellow at the Department of Human Geography, University of Cambridge and Fellow Emeritus of Jesus College, University of Cambridge. She is a Fellow of the British and International Psychoanalytical Societies and a Fellow of the British Academy.

- Karen Gilmore

Dr. Karen Gilmore is an adult, child and adolescent psychiatrist and psychoanalyst, and a Training and Supervising Analyst at Columbia University Center for Psychoanalytic Training and Research. She is also a Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at Columbia University. Dr. Gilmore has published a number of papers on a range of clinical topics, such as play, developmental theory, adoption, sexual development and gender identity disorder, and attention deficit disorder. She authored a chapter in the 2011 edition of the Textbook of Psychoanalysis, entitled, "Childhood Experience and the Adult World," and co-authored (with Pamela Meersand) a chapter entitled, "Normal Child and Adolescent Development," for the 2014 Edition of the Textbook of Psychiatry. Also with Pamela Meersand, she co-authored: Normal Child and Adolescent Development: A Psychodynamic Primer for APPI (2013), The Little Book of Child and Adolescent Development for Oxford University Press (2014), and the forthcoming: Play Therapy in the 21st Century for APPI.
